Mr. Darith started his welcome remarks by congratulating to all participants for attending this important webinar as it came at the right-time to offer CFOs and Finance Professionals with practical knowledge, tips, tactics and recommendations to better prepare with sound strategies, plans and activities to successfully overcome COVID-19 challenges. Mr. Darith also mentioned that given global and in country COVID Situation, CFOs have been taking on greater strategic and enterprise building roles in guiding their companies/institutions to successfully overcome COVID-19 challenges as there have been and will be lots of uncertainties, business disruptions, liquidity issue, compliances issues, operational adaption and risk managements. CFOs have been playing and will be playing crucial roles as business partners to strategically survive, recover and grow the Businesses during and post COVID-19 crisis.

Leading Through Uncertainties and Chaos

Ms. Pheakdey Pok highlighted that given situation is evolving dramatically, we must look into the following areas:

➤ Having Business contingency plan (BCP) with various business strategic scenarios:

- Staff planning and preparing for critical and back up roles
- Reviewing biz strategy, reforecasting and updating to Board regularly

➤ Moving to a virtual organization as much as possible by investing on IT support to support staff and business remotely

➤ Reviewing risk, liquidity, funding management

- Reviewing Cybersecurity and information security
- Reviewing Operational loss/ internal fraud
- Reviewing short term funding including liquidity ratio, AR, AP and operating cashflow
- Reviewing Financing option (contingent fund) and long-term debt
- Setting authority level of expense to monitor cash outflow

➤ Last but not least, to ensure all above are executed from the top to bottom, the leader needs to lead people through engagement, clarity, empathy; plus, allow them to reskill/upskill to adapt to change.

Break Away from Numbers by Being A Strategic Player

Mr. Olivier Hubert emphasized on:

- Organization diagnosis
- CFO self-assessment
- TOP Priorities: Cash isn't just king, it critical for survival
 - Addressing the priorities
 - Stabilizing the business
- Digital transformation and CFO Role
- CFO role: Beyond Number

Accountants of the Future: Preparing for the Decade of the 2020s

Mr. Sharath Martin shared his perspectives based on ACCA research on two areas which will largely define the profession in the decade of the 2020s - digital transformation and sustainability. He noted that uncertainties in the business and societal environment have increased and likely remain high over the next few years. As such, the challenges for accountants and finance professionals will be in 3 main areas:

➤ how do we make sense of future operating environments?

➤ Will current business models need to change?

➤ How will customers, suppliers, and communities be impacted?

To address this, Mr. Sharath proposed that accountants need to get better at using technology, particularly forward based, not historical based insights, using finance as well as operational data. More importantly, Mr. Sharath emphasized that finance and accounting leaders in this decade will have to address sustainability issues, climate change or social inequalities. "Ultimately, finance leaders who respond and adapt to these strategic issues better will help their organizations and economy grow more profitably and equitably in this decade".

To conclude and wrap up the webinar, Mr. Darith pointed that there are lots of know-how and take away from this webinar to successfully overcome the COVID19 challenges, and there are lots tips and recommendations from our key speakers that includes:

- Business Contingency Plan with Scenarios,
- Digital Transformation and Adoption,
- People Leadership with strategic changes,
- Building up resilience with priorities on liquidity
- Operational Adaptation; and
- Strategic Skills to improve in the next 5 years.
