The Audit Practice Manual (APM) in Cambodia is a framework used by auditors and audit firms in the country to guide the conduct of audits in line with Cambodian regulations, standards, and professional practices. The Audit Practice Manual is an essential tool for auditors in Cambodia, helping to maintain high standards of audit quality and ensuring the reliability of financial reporting in the country. It is also used as a reference for training and professional development within the Cambodian auditing profession.

Key aspects of the APM in Cambodia include:

1. Compliance with Cambodian Standards: The APM ensures that audits are performed in accordance with Cambodian International Standards on Auditing (CISA), which are adapted from international auditing standards.
2. Audit Planning and Procedures: The manual provides detailed instructions on how to plan audits, assess risks, and perform audit procedures that are appropriate for the Cambodian business environment.

3. Documentation and Reporting: The APM outlines the required documentation for audit evidence and provides guidelines for preparing audit reports in compliance with Cambodian laws and regulations.

4. Quality Control: It includes procedures to maintain the quality and integrity of the audit process, ensuring that auditors follow ethical guidelines and maintain independence.

5. Local Adaptation: While based on international best practices, the APM is tailored to reflect the specific legal, economic, and cultural context of Cambodia.
